Subject: Food Safety measures

आदरणीय महोदया/महोदय,

As you are aware, food safety is a critical aspect of public health and its significance cannot be overstated. Every year, millions of people worldwide suffer from foodborne illness due to improper handling, storage, or preparation of food. Students, in particular, are vulnerable to these risks, given their often hectic schedules and reliance on ready-to-eat foods.

In this regard, the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI), the country's apex food regulator under the aegis of the Ministry of Health & Family Welfare has been sharing updates on healthy food habits, information, and education campaigns to educate and empower consumers, alerts related to foodborne illness through its social media handles. The initiative is aimed to educate students about the importance of food safety practices and empower them with the knowledge and skills to make informed choices regarding their dietary habits. FSSAI's social media handles (links) for the latest updates and valuable insights are attached for information please.

The Higher Education Institutions are requested to initiate propagation of FSSAI messages and support food safety initiatives which will foster a culture of Food safety consciousness and promote the well-being of the student community.
